"PINAFORE'S" AUTHORS

Reception to Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan at the Lotos Club.

WHY THEY CAME TO AMERICA

Graceful Addresses by the Two Distinguished Visitors.

A very enjoyable reception was given last night by the members of the Lotos Club, at their rooms, Fifth avenue and Twenty-first street, to Messrs. Arthur Sullivan and W. S. Gli-bert, the authors of "Pinafore." Mr. White-law Reid presided, and the distinguished guests sat on either side. After a bountiful dinner and been done ample justice to Mr. Reid extended the hearty welcome of the club to the guests of the evening, "as men who had used their undoubted genius to good ends and who had added to the happiness of their kind." He first called upon Mr. W. Gilbert, the author of the text, to respond.

When Mr. Gilbert arose he was received with hearty spplause and cheers. After these had subsided he spoke as follows:- "Mr. Chairman and gentle men:-As my friend Sullivan and myself were driving to this club, both very nervous and sensitive men, and having vividly before us the ordeal in store for us, we cast about for a comparison to which we might liken ourselves. At first we likened ourselves to a composer and author driving to a theatre where a piece of theirs was to be played for the first time. We dismissed that as faulty, inasmuch as in the case of a piece by ourselves there was always or a chance of success—(laughter)—whereas, in the performance in which we were to take part, there was nothing before us but humiliating deteat. We found we were rather in the position of prisoners surrendering to their ball, and we beg you will exlend to us the merciful consideration of the court. "NO LIGHT MATTER."

It is probably expected of me that in replying to the toast I should do so in a tone of the lightest possible comedy. I am not sorry that I cannot do (his. A man who has been welcomed, as we do this. A man who has been welcomed, as we have, by the leading representatives of literature and art in this great city, and who can look apon that welcome simply as a suitable peg upon which to hang a string of small jokes, oners the best proof in his power that he is the recipient of an honor to which he is not entitled. It is no light thing for a man to come to a foreign country and find himself, as we have done, emphatically, unmistakably, and in the best sense of the word, "at hime." (Applause.) It is no light thing to come among people whom we not be not sent to the triendship is so dear to us that I am disposed to stray from the beaten paths of after-dinner oratory and to justify ourselves to a certain extent in a matter of which I have reason to believe we have been somewhat misrepresented. I have seen paragraphs to the effect that we have a grievance against New Y rk managers because they h ve played our piece and offered us no share of the profits. In that respect we have no grievance whatever. Our only complaint is that there is no international copyright not. The author of a play—and by suthor I beg you will understand also composer and author of the musical piece—in which there never was a copyright is very much in the position of the nearest living descendants of a deceased a thor wases copyright has expired. I am not aware that our London publishers are in the habit of seeking out the nearest living descendants of an doceased a thor wase copyright is very much in the position of the nearest living descendants of an of the profits of their works. If they do so the do so on the principle that the right hand knows not what the left hand does. (Laughter.) We will assume, therefore, that they have not done so. If the descendants of eminent authors were to appeal to managers or publishers or a share of the profits of their works they would be met with the reply, "The copyright in the eworks his expired." It would be a sufticient answer and nebody would dispute t. And, therefore, they would reply that have, by the leading representatives of literature they would reply that "your copyright never existed."

And that our copyright never existed is due entirely to our part. We consulted an American lawyer, and were informed that although an alien has no statutory right to his work, he has that right to his unpublished play which we all have in our pockethandkerchiefs; that is to say, no statute is required to make that our own. So we hesitated a long white as to whether we should keep it in manu-ript for oursaives or whether we should puotish it. We finally determined upon the latter at reative. We imagined that the piece was so pure y national, so purely insular in its character, that it would not be appreciated on this side of the Atlantic. Events have shown that we were mistaken. At all events it was a conclusion to which we arrived with open eves and we have nobody to blame for it but ourselves. As it is we have realized be the sale of the book in the house and the sale of the planoforte score over the contract of the planoforte score over the counter 27 fette sale. the sale of the book in the house and the sale of the pianoforte score over the counter $7,500 each, and under these circumstances we are not much to be pitied. good time I am to have, why then our expectations will be more than realized. Short as has been my stay here, I have been filled with good wishes and good will and kind, encouraging words. This good will I most anxiously wish to retain. True, the minstrel song of to-day may fall upon your ear to-morrow, but the minstrel, though he is not heary nor very old, has been singing to you some years, and has always been listened to with attention, interest and encouragement, and I can feel proud that my musical offsprings which have preceded me to this country have secured to me such a gracious welcome as I meet here to-night. I resume my sear thanking you, however imperfect my expression may be, for the munificent hospitality we have received this evening, and for the cordial, hearty welcome you have afforded us both. (Applause.)

AMUSEMENTS.

STEINWAY HALL-SYMPHONY CONCERT. The first concert of the season by the Symphony Society of New York was given last night at Steinway Hall. The audience, which was a very large one necessitating the throwing open of the small hall to accommodate the overflow from the larger room, was most appreciative of the music and judicious in its marks of approbation. Dr. Damrosch led the orchestra with more than even his accustomed power, and seemed to be in such perfect harmony with his able musicians, and at all times held them together so admirably in spirit and time, that the results exceeded almost anything the society has yet accomplished and fairly earned for the concert the verdict of a grand success. The entire programme was orchestrally well rendered, and marked with power and grace and finish-The orchestra is a remarkably fine one, numbering last evening seventy-two instruments and including many noted musicians among the players. Almost any programme that such an assembly of artists would choose could not but be well rendered. Though a flaw here and there may be pointed at in a single selection, the faults are so insignificant com-pared with the merits of the whole work, and the fact of their existence depends so largely on personal judgment, that they are unworthy of lengthy con-ing of the Beethoven sonata and the Second Movement from the Reff symphony. The first fow bars of the sonata were not quite perfectly rendered, the instruments hardly grasping the subject at once with unity and purpose. It was hardly a noticeable blemish and was atoned for in the rest of the movement, which was superbly given. The allegretto was not equal in effect to the presto or finale, but was still a fine piece of work and deserving of the hearty approval it received. The presto was grandly played and given an unusual breadth of tone and expression. The crescendos were magnificently rendered and the execution of the movement throughout was marvellously good.

The finale was the crowning triumph of all, and as a whole was simply perfect. It was enthusiastically received and fully deserved the long continued applanse which followed its conclusion.

The "Raff Sympiony" movement was charmingly done. There were no inaccuracies from end to end, and the whole was a complete, harmonious and graceful rendering of the music worthy of any orchestra. To mention the good points would be to give a detailed account of the treatment of every passage. As the orchestra is certainly capable or fine work, to say that it was evenly done is to say that the movement was well done throughout.

The "Faust" overture and the Lists election may be summarized as well conceived and well interpreted. Special mention should be made of the execution of a chromatic passage in the "Faust" overture, which was done with almost unprecedented brilliancy. The cearness, power and precision in the delivery of the notes were marvellous and produced a marked effect on the house. ment from the Raff symphony. The first few bare ecution of a chromatic passage in the "raust" overture, which was done with almost unprecedented brilliancy. The clearness, power and precision in the delivery of the notes were marvellous and produced a marked effect on the house.

Mass Drasdil's voice has been so often commented upon, and its rich quality and fulness in the lower notes have so often been restred to, that there is nothing to say of her singing last evening, except to criticise her conception of the Volkman and Schubert music. There was a monotony of expression throughout both selections that robbed them of nearly all their beauties. The voice was there, and the music was on the page before her, but she failed to convey by proper phrasing, by distribution of light and shade, by warmth of soul in her singing, the true spirit and meaning of the delicately conceived poems which had been allied to the vocal scores. As specimens of vocal music her selections were satisfactory; as interpretations of poet and composer they were colorless and unsatisfactory.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC-"PATIST

the matinée yesterday affords no opportunity to change the favorable comments that were made in these columns concerning its performance last Monday evening. The Academy of Music was thronged by one of the largest afternoon audiences of the season, and the westih of appiause which followed the rendition of the chief arias of "Faust" was proof that the effort of the management to fit the best artists in the best rôle; is heartily appreciated by all true lovers of music. The cast was unchanged. Campanini, as usual in superb voice, personated Faust, and Del Puente personating Mephistopheies. Signor Gaiassi was Valentino; Mille. Annie Louise Cary, Siebel; Mme. Lablache, Martha, and Mile. Valleria, Margherita. The last named artist has become a popular favorite. Mr. Mapleson, however, must bear in mind that our musical p-ople have been educated by himself and others to look for the very best rendition of opera—equal in all respects to that in European capitals. When he gives us correct representations, such as the "Faust" of yesterday, and an indifferent work, like that of "Trovatore," on Friday evening, they naturally cause comparison that cannot be agreeable to managerial judgment.

THE B. P. ORDER OF RIKS.

The B. P. O. Elks take their annual benefit on Thursday aft rnoon, November 13, 1879, at the Academy of Music, when one of the most attractive programmes of the year is offered, consisting of a farce by the Theatre Comique company, a ballad by Jennie Morgan, Salsbury Troubadours in one act or "Brook," Mapleson Opera Troupe, J. P. Smith's "Tourists in a Pullman Car." "A Trial by Jury" by the company from the Standard Theatre, J. K. Emmet and entire company in "Fritz in Ireland," together with the scenery, properties and full orchestra from the Park Theatre, Delchanty and Hengler, Goss and Fox, E. C. Dunbar, the Milanese ministra; George Thatcher, Frank Gerard and Jennie Satteriee in a farce, the three Bent Brothers in a cornet soie, the Herbert Brothers, acrobats; an orchestra of forty-fave musicians, under the conductorship of Professor H. T. Dyring; also other attractions, consisting of the most varied as well as attractive programmes yet given by this benevolent organization, whose reputation tor its annual ball and benefits is well known. The charman of the Committee or Arrangements is Colonel T. Allston Brown, who has had much experience in these affairs.

T. Allston Brown, who has had much experience in these affairs.

The Order of Eiks was organized expressly for sick and needy professionats, and the only money it receives is from its annual ball and benefit. It is said that no similar organization in existance yearly distributes as much money for charity as these Eiks.

Miss Fanny Davenport will to-morrow night begin an engagement of a week at the Brooklyn Park Theatre, playing the pieces with which her name is most prominently identified. She will be supported by the satisfactory company which has been playing with her at the Grand Opera House.

Rose Coghlan, Joseph Whoelock and J. B. Studley. The performances of Mile. Magda Irschik at the Thalia Theatre during the past week have been noticed in czienso in these columns. Her tragic powers are not only great, but her popularity with the pub-lic is shown by the houses she draws. "Sea Cadet" will be performed every night when Mile. Irschik does not appear. This artist's repertoire for the pres-ent week will consist of "Deborah" (Leah) for tomorrow and "Griseldis" for Wednesday. On Saturday she will appear as the "Jungfrau von Orieans" (The Maid of Orleans).

Manager Henderson's enterprise at the Standard Theatre in producing "H. M. S. Pinnfore" and "Trial by Jury" is not without its legitimate pecuniary results. The houses are well filled, and the artists are among those by whom the success of "Pinafore" was established at the beginning. The Ralph Rackstraw of Mr. Wallace Macrery, the Dick Dead Eye of Mr. Pamental, the Josephine of Miss Eva Mills, the Little Buttercup of Miss Estelle Mortimer and the Hebe of Mile. Jarbeau are all impersonstions that deserve praise. The chorus is also Manager Gilmore, at Niblo's, is elated over the success of "Enchantment," and is now engaged in making preparations for the celebration of the oc-currence of the hundredth performance of the well week of the display piece will be begun, and the specialty act will be changed by the introduction of new features. Mr. James Dunn is playing the part of the Komical King. Up to last evening over two hundred thousand people are said to have witnessed the piece, and it is estimated that the profits are already beyond $40,000. It is to be produced at the Globe Theatre, Boston, before the year expires.

"Fatinitza" will be brought out at the Olympic

Theatre to-morrow evening with a carefully selected ompany, comprising among others Miss Frederika Rokhol, Miss Reca Murrelli, Miss Ida Castaldo, Mr. George S. Weeks, and Mr. Adolph Fronosch, the German basso and the original General Kontschakoff in this country, who on this occasion is to make his first appearance in English opera. The production is under the musical direction of Mr. J. Q. Hoyt, Jr. Suppè's comic opera has heretofore been heard only at the Germania Theatre and at the Fifth Avenue during the summer term. Its revival now in the regular season may therefore excite considerable

One of the greatest hits of the season, made during the week by Manager Neuendorff, was in producing the latest of L'Arrongé's comedies, Wonlthaetige Prauen" (Benevolent Ladies). The play is a satire upon the mistaken ideas of female charity, which consists of concerts and other entertainments, for alleviating the suffering of the deserving poor, but the results are usually the amuse-ment of the audiences only, with no profit for the beneficiaries. From beginning to end the comedy kept the house in a roar. Its success has been such that seats are being sold a week in advance. The cast of the play embraces nearly all of the Germania's company. Messrs. Reinau, Rauk, Feuchter, Sauer, Meery, Misses Neckar, Bensberg, Heller, Schmitz and Sette are all worthy of mention. "Wohlthaetige Frauen" will remain the attraction here until further notice.

Mr. Ion Perdicaris, an American gentleman of Greek origin, long resident in Paris, will make his appearance before the American public to-morrow evening, at the Fifth Avenue Theatre, as both painter and dramatist, a dual rôle hitherto unknown in the annals of the American stage. Mr. Perdicaris' play, which was written for his painting, is entitled "The Picture," and is a strong romantic drams in three acts and a prologue, each of which is short, sharp and decisive. The scene is laid in Saxe-Weimar, 300 years ago, and the hero is a young painter. The picture which was painted for the play is a canvas 16x23 feet, containing a composition entitled the "Triumph of Immortality," which is the first allegorical picture ever painted in the new and brilliant school of modern French art, and which was warmly commended by the Paris press last spring. Miss Nard Almayne, Miss Marie Prescott, Mr. Joseph Wheelock, Mr. Philip Beck and Mr. Harry Colton will appear in the play. An afterpiece entitled "La Sociétaire," from the pens of Mr. Perdicaris and Mr. Townsend Percy, and which is said to be full of local allusions and hits at popular follies, will be also presented.
